

Abstract Submitted to the International Conference on Strongly Correlated Electron Systems
University of Michigan, Ann Arbor
August 6-10, 2001

Gravitoelectromagnetic superconductivity. A theoretical approach of Podkletnov's effect.

M. Agop<sup>1</sup>, P. D.Ioannou<sup>2</sup>, C. Gh. Buzea<sup>3</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Department of Physics, Technical "Gh. Asachi" University, Iasi, Romania

<sup>2</sup> *Nuclear and Particle Physics Section, Department of Physics, University of Athens,
Athens, Greece*

<sup>3</sup> Institute of Technical Physics, Iasi, Romania

The gravito-electromagnetic Meissner's effect by the superposition of the linear gravitational and electromagnetic fields is analysed. In such a context, a weak gravitational shielding for a bulk high temperature superconductor results (Podkletnov's effect).